The Hongkong Telegraph

HONGKONG, THURSDAY, JUNE 15, 1882.

It is exactly one year to-day since the first issue of the Hongkong Telegraph was given to the public, and the first annual anniversary of its existence is surely a fitting occasion on which we may appropriately return thanks to the community for the hearty general support which has been accorded to the first independent newspaper this Colony has ever known. In introducing to our friends the modest little sheet—which the Editor of the China Mail so courteously sneered at as "a rag" and for which the Editor of the Daily Press pompously predicted a fortnight's existence—we wrote:—An idea appears to have prevailed in some quarters of the Colony for a considerable period, that the public interests were so efficiently represented by the two journals of long standing already in existence, as to leave no room for a third paper, and doubtless the want of success which attended previous efforts to establish on a firm basis, a daily rival to the Press and China Mail considerably strengthened this opinion. It seems to us, however, times having so materially altered since the Hongkong Times became a mere landmark of the past, without any provision or allowance having been made for the changed aspect of affairs by our morning and evening contemporaries, that a journal laid down on the lines of the Telegraph cannot fail to meet with a large share of public approbation and support. With absolute faith in this belief, we have considered our cause sufficiently good to risk in the face of many obstacles and difficulties, (some of which by the way, might have been spared us) the ordeal of a fair public trial.

That our belief was well founded has been clearly demonstrated by practical results. The Telegraph in one year has, from a small badly printed sheet, become the best printed, the best written, the most reliable, the most popular, and the only independent journal in Hongkong. In spite of the sneers and jeers and back-handed opposition of our contemporaries; notwithstanding an expensive and most unjustifiable libel suit; and in the face of obstacles and difficulties thrown in our way by unscrupulous political partisans, we have persevered and prospered—thanks to the support of the community at large, who were not slow to recognise what the powers and province of the press had been, and what they ought to be.

In respectfully soliciting a continuance of that support which has been so generously extended towards us by our friends and the public, we gratefully express our acknowledgement of past favors, and promise to do our utmost to make the Telegraph, in every way possible worthy of support.

UNDER the heading "U.S. Legation in China" the following very interesting letter which appeared in a recent issue of the Japan Mail has been sent to us for publication:

The evils wrought by the misdirected advocacy of indiscreet friends have long been proverbial. Of all persons who have suffered from such injudicious championing, none is entitled to more commiseration than the present worthy American Consul-general in Shanghai; a gentleman whose name, I believe, is warmly and sincerely esteemed in the community where he dwells, but who is brought into something like actual dispute by the inadvertence of a recent attempt to magnify him in the editorial columns of the North China Herald. As is not uncommon with unskillful eulogists, the error of superfluous exaltation is accompanied by disparagement of fancied rivals, by awkward parallels, and by odious comparisons of a kind that can inflict injury only where they are clumsily intended to confer benefit. But for these discreditable reflections upon other parties the North China Herald's demonstration might be passed in silence. Charity to the only individual likely to be harmed by it would dictate such a dismissal; but the general insolence displayed, and the reckless treatment of persons and topics concerning which the writer is at least as ignorant as he is impudent, appear to me to call for a rebuke which shall be as effective as is possible, without adding too severely to the embarrassment under which the victim of his over-zealous laudation already labors.

A few preliminary words are necessary to explain the situation. Judge DEXNY, formerly Consul of the United States at Tientsin and now Consul-general at Shanghai, has, for some time, cherished the natural, and certainly proper, ambition of rising to the post of Minister at Peking. He has been regarded by those whose judgment is entitled to confidence, as thoroughly qualified for that office. He has, probably, received private assurances, from influential quarters, that his aspirations would be supported, under certain conditions, and if circumstances should render that support practicable. To a measurable extent, he had grounds for hoping that the path of promotion would be made easy for him. He never, at any time, had warrant for believing that the appointment was absolutely promised to him;—for the simple reason that no one but the President of the United States has the power to make such a promise. Nevertheless, it has been well known in Washington that a strong and almost unequalled influence was exerted in his favor. It was among the earnest desires of a very eminent American citizen that Judge DENNY should succeed Minister ANGELL. Still, it was not his first and paramount desire,—to which circumstance Judge DENNY's failure to receive the nomination may be attributed. It has been stated in official circles in Washington,—and I may be pardoned for saying that I know the statement to be true,—that Judge DENNY's fitness for the appointment was cordially affirmed by a personage whose approval is always flattering, and that the affirmation was never withdrawn. But it unfortunately happened that certain contingent arrangements could not be effected, and Judge DEXNY's name was reluctantly laid aside. That is the plain story of the case, as Judge DENNY himself will not be disinclined to believe.

And now comes forward the editor of the North China Herald with a prolonged wail, not only over the disappointment of his protégé, but also over the appointments of American officials in general, and that of the chosen incumbent in particular. I beg to have it understood that I do not believe Judge DENNY is responsible for this outcry of lamentation; but I must yet say that its tone and its method are precisely calculated to impress upon the usual reader the assurance that he did inspire it, and did supply a good share of the material of which it is composed. This is not the least part of the mischief which the blundering editor has inflicted. Although it may be totally unjust, many who are unacquainted with Judge DENNY's character will be unable to resist the impression that the North China Herald's most important statements of alleged facts could have proceeded from nobody but the person least justified in imparting them. How, for example, shall a stranger avoid asking who, except Judge DENNY, could have told the writer what General GRANT had or had not bound himself to do on the Judge's behalf? It is true that, to the initiated, the extreme positiveness of the pretended pledge would prove it to be fictitious; but all are not aware how impossible it would be for General

GRANT to commit himself to an absolute promise which he could not personally execute. With a considerable number the conclusion must be irresistible, that this vehement supporter of Judge DENNY's claims had direct authority for what he asserted. With a still larger number, the conviction must be firm that the officious pleader is at least so far in the confidence of the man he wishes to advance as to be able to consult him respecting the truth or falsehood of that one extraordinary allegation. Judge DENNY's nearest friends can hardly deny that nothing could well have happened more unfortunate for his reputation in the finer and more delicate sense, than the publication of the unjustifiable assertion that General GRANT had prematurely placed the Peking mission at his disposal.

Having shown how the editor of the North China Herald has succeeded in putting the Consul-general of the United States in a painfully false position, I beg to call attention to the utter ridiculousness of the attitude in which he has placed himself, while posing as a lofty censor of the American diplomatic system, and distributing shafts of contumely against all American officials whose names he can—or thinks he can,—call to mind. He sets forth with the familiar criticism of the American civil service, with an air of as much originality as if all sensible Americans had not long ago admitted and deplored the evil. Dropping generalities, he enters the region of personality in these words:—Mr. JOHN C. MYERS was a Nebraska lawyer; Dr. ANGELL, the studious principal of Michigan University; Mr. LOWELL MASON has achieved a world-wide popularity for witty doggerel, and Mr. RUSSELL YOUNG is the correspondent of a daily newspaper. This, be it understood, is put forward as a convincing illustration of the worthlessness of the American system, and as a sort of argument that people of Mr. Young's stamp should have no place in the ranks of diplomacy. I might incidentally inquire, since the editor's whole purpose is to elevate Judge DENNY at the expense of others of his countrymen, whether the conditions of that gentleman's home life were conspicuously superior to those of lawyers, presidents of universities, poets or journalists? Passing over this piece of boomerang play, I desire to ask, what judgment should be declared against a writer who, in the course of an attack upon usages and individuals, shows himself at once unacquainted with the usages, and ignorant of the very names of the individuals? Who is Mr. LOWELL MASON? Does any body know, in this neighbourhood? Very few, I fancy. Certainly not the editor of the North China Herald. And whom do you imagine, he thinks is talking about? Why, no less a person, if you please, than JAMES RUSSELL LOWELL, whom he has heard of only as a composer of "witty doggerel," but whom the entire world of literature and philosophy knows as one of the noblest poets of the age; one of the purest philanthropists that ever brightened the hopes of humanity, an honoured member of the faculty of America's first university, and a diplomatist who has made his record in more than one European capital. This eminent man, now Envoy of the United States to Great Britain, becomes, translated into the language of the North China Herald, "Mr. LOWELL MASON," an author of "witty doggerel." Surely enough, he'd produce those masterpieces of pungent virile humor, the "Biglow Papers;" but if these are "witty doggerel," then "witty doggerel" takes its place as an agent of destiny, and as a political force that helps to shape the growth of nations. "LOWELL MASON," indeed! Now I think of it, there was once a Lowell MASON, a sombre old-fashioned party, who made the music of hymnbooks for many a long year; but what ever mixed him up in the mind of the North China Herald with the brilliant ornament of European and American society, the United States Minister to England, is, as Lord DUNDREARY would remark, one of those things that no fellow can find out. However, there it is; let him read the riddle who can, and then deliver his opinion as to the propriety of such a bungler's making himself heard on the question under consideration.

Although the attempt to perform diplomatic or consular duties by any but those duly chosen by competitive examination for the work, and rigorously trained afterward, is scoffed at by the Shanghai editor, it is obvious that journalists are the particular objects of his contempt. He is opposed to Mr. Young chiefly because he is "the correspondent of a daily newspaper." And then he wants to know, "what would be thought if EDMUND YATES, or GEORGE AUGUSTUS SALA, were nominated the successor of Sir THOMAS WADE?" It is singular to find this sort of stale depreciation in the editorial columns of a respectable journal; when the world at large has become pretty well confirmed in the view that the true editorial faculty probably combines a greater variety and higher quality of intellectual endowments than any occupation now known among men. It would almost be a waste of time to specify examples of newspaper writers who have proved themselves capable of distinction in any career. A hasty glance, however, will not be amiss. Has our contemporary heard of that Chancellor of the LOCAL AND GENERAL.

A SAN FRANCISCO paper observes that the news of the signing of the Chinese Immigration bill was received throughout that city with general satisfaction.

We are informed by the Agent of the E. E. & China Telegraph Company, Limited, that the incoming French mail passed Cape St. James, at 4 a.m., on the 13th instant.

A VIENNA telegram of the 10th ulto., states that the Mayor of that city has been acquitted of the charge of neglect of duty in connection with the great fire at the Ring Theatre.

We would remind our readers that the Bandmann-Beaudet Combination will appear at the Theatre Royal, City Hall, this evening, in Shakespeare's celebrated tragedy "Othello."

REMONS are current of further Chinese failures owing to land speculations. Our observations made on this subject in our issue of January 3rd, have proved prophetic. We then wrote in reviewing the events of the previous half year: "We must claim credit for having repeatedly warned the public during the house property scare, against having anything to do with what was on the face of it the greatest bogus swindle of modern times in Hongkong, in the face of the puffing up by the other journals of what has proved a rare harvest for the lawyers at the expense of infatuated speculators whose blind faith has led them into irretrievable ruin."

THE new tug-boat for the Peninsular and Oriental S. N. Company, to be used for towing the Company's lighters, was successfully launched at Sam-sui-po this morning. She is a powerful craft, and should prove admirably adapted for the work for which she has been specially constructed.

WE note that the British steamship Suez arrived at Esquimalt on the morning of the 14th ulto. from Hongkong with 800 Chinese laborers for the Canadian Pacific Railway. She made the run from Hongkong in twenty-two days, and from Yokohama in seventeen days. She proceeds to San Francisco light, for orders.

TO a poetess the heartless Chicago Tribune writes: "It will be impossible to print your poem about the roses true and the violets blue that bloom in the grassy dell, and the little birds that sweetest words of love in their chirps tell. We have a large line of dell and bluebird poetry on hand this spring that was carried over from last year."

SAYS the San Francisco Evening Bulletin:—We have a hero in port. There is a point of interest in connection with one of the British iron steamers now in port, namely the Giant's Castle. This is her first appearance here. She is the steamer that saved the passengers and crew of the disabled German steamer Almea between Liverpool and Norfolk, and was so handsomely rewarded in the way of salvage. The young commander was not forgotten for his humane act. Captain Tod is under thirty years of age but looks older. It is remarked as a coincidence that the ship on which he was apprenticed for five years is now in this port—the Earl Dalhousie. The Giant's Castle is a 2,400 ton vessel, and her record of twenty-eight days from Hongkong shows that she is a good sailor.

THE following interesting document has just been handed to us:—"In the cause in which Daniel Edward Bandmann is complainant, and Robert Fraser-Smith, proprietor, Hongkong Telegraph is defendant—Whereas complainant hath this day been made before the undersigned, a Police Magistrate, and one of Her Majesty's Justices of the Peace in and for the said Colony of Hongkong, for that you on the 10th day of June, A.D. 1882 at Victoria in this Colony, unlawfully did publish a certain defamatory libel of and concerning one Daniel Edward Bandmann contrary to the statute in such case made and provided—These are therefore to command you, &c., &c., to appear before me on Friday the 16th day of June, 1882, at 2.30 o'clock in the afternoon, &c., &c. This critic had never seen so young a Juliet as Miss Beaudet. Professor Huxley tell us, that chalk cures acidity. Consequently I get some chalk, stir it in my cans, and save the membranes of my customers without charging a penny for it—actually give it away, and yet they talk about milkmen as if they were bushrangers."

THE dramatic critic (?) of the China Mail has been at his old tricks with the English language. His notice of "Romeo and Juliet" as played by the Bandmann-Beaudet Combination is an extraordinary production, both as a critical review and as a literary composition, even for our evening contemporary. He tells us that notwithstanding certain disadvantages, "Romeo and Juliet" was played with a remarkable "go," the public seeming to enjoy the lovers' manifestations of passion as it swept along in a tide of restless delight, as well as to manifest a lively sympathy with the accumulated horrors that gather round the hapless pair as the tragedy progresses on to its denouement."

WHAT a "remarkable go" may mean is left unexplained, and the author gets lost in the lovers' manifestations of passion as "it swept along."

Further on the 14th day of June, A.D. 1882 at Victoria in this Colony, unlawfully did publish a certain defamatory libel of and concerning one

Daniel Edward Bandmann contrary to the statute in such case made and provided—These are therefore to command you, &c., &c., to appear before me on Friday the 16th day of June, 1882, at 2.30 o'clock in the afternoon, &c., &c. This critic had never seen so young a Juliet as Miss Beaudet. Professor Huxley tell us, that chalk cures acidity. Consequently I get some chalk, stir it in my cans, and save the membranes of my customers without charging a penny for it—actually give it away, and yet they talk about milkmen as if they were bushrangers."

IT was during the balcony scene, that Miss Beaudet, in her artless, timidly-bold declaration of love, begins to absorb the whole soul of the audience; as afterwards all the interest settles to centre in her, and she maintains it to the end."

"She as Juliet so works upon her imagination by recalling up all the horrors she might have to undergo in the vault, amidst her "festered ancestors," that becoming beside herself, she swallows the potion in a paroxysm of terror."

"Among the first of Shakespearean creations, and considered by critics as more or less indicative of his mental state during early manhood, we have never been quite able to witness or even to idealize to ourselves a satisfactory representation of the Foet-lover, for such we may term Romeo. It is not Herr Bandmann's fault, therefore, that his Romeo is not our Romeo, as we very much question whether any one else could adequately fill the rôle."

"Merlito was represented by Mr. Ogden, and is the happiest impersonation that gentleman has yet given to us. His humours and quizzings, his quips and repartees were satisfactorily spoken, the action to the word, and the word to the action."

IT would be an act of charity for the readers of the China Mail to subscribe for a cheap copy of Lindley Murray for the special benefit of the dramatic critic of that eminent journal.

THE HONGKONG TELEGRAPH, THURSDAY, JUNE 15, 1882.

THE enterprising house cookie of Dr. Adams who attempted in October of last year to break open his master's safe, has at last been collared, thus again verifying the truth of the saying, that however difficult it may be for integrity to get on, it is a thousand times more difficult for knavery to get off. The safe-breaker made his appearance at the Police Court this morning before Mr. Wodehouse, on remand from the 8th instant. Dr. Adams applied for a further remand, on the ground that the principal witness in the case, the watchman who actually saw the unfaithful servant endeavouring to break open his master's safe with a cold chisel, was not here at present. The Magistrate remanded the case till the 21st instant. After the unsuccessful attempt on the safe, the house cookie bolted, and nothing was seen of him until lately, when, thinking he was secure, he reappeared in the Colony. The sharp-eyed Chinese detectives, however, quickly pounced upon him.

A GARDENER stated at the Police Court this morning that he went to a house yesterday in Sy-ning-poo to visit a friend, and that while sitting in the passage, the defendant, a rice-pounder, and others, came into the house. The defendant tried to pull the stool from under him, and when he remonstrated with him, he struck him (complainant) on the head with the iron bar produced, cutting him. Not content with this, he struck him on the left arm also, and when he seized the rice-pounder, the latter's companions also assaulted him. However, he found a constable, to whom he gave the defendant in charge.—The prisoner, in his defence, said the house was a sly brothel, and that he went there, but did not assault the gardener.—The owner of the alleged sly brothel deposed that hearing a noise, he looked out from the cook-room where he was, and saw the defendant and two others beating the gardener, his friend, who had come to visit him, and whom he assisted in arresting the defendant.—Captain Thomsett sentenced the rice-pounder to a month's hard labour, during which period he will receive, at Government expense, rice already pounded for him.

THE Rev. Joseph Cook, whose little differences with the minister of the Union Church here will be remembered, has apparently been again getting into hot water—this time at Nagasaki. A correspondent writes, under the heading "Fanatic Ignorance," to the Rising Sun and Nagasaki Express on the 1st instant as follows:—"A notice savouring somewhat of the 'sensational' was circulated on 29th May, announcing that 'the celebrated American lecturer, Mr. Joseph Cook,' would deliver a lecture, at the most imposing and elegant structure in Nagasaki, on Education. The Rev. person's remarks at the meeting referred to, would have been unworthy of note, had he not made use of expressions regarding the author of 'A Foreign Mission in Japan,' which were not characterised by that moderation and charity inculcated by the master whose tenets he professes to follow. The 'lecturer' worked himself into a state of—what I suppose he would call—"righteous indignation;" but what in the opinion of an unbiased outsider might justly be termed unseemly passion; and as he could not possibly refute the truth of the poem, which has so successfully raised his ire, by fair argument, he descended as is usual in such cases, to coarse abuse. Let me advise the 'Eminent American Lecturer' to moderate his tone, to be more careful in his public utterances, and I would once more earnestly recommend him to try and cultivate a little more of that great virtue for which his Master was so famous."

THE charge against a mendicant of bringing a female child under six years of age into the Colony for an unlawful purpose on the 31st May, was further investigated at the Police Court this morning. On the 1st instant, when the case originally came on, a member of the anti-Kidnapping Society stated he had heard the mendicant say, the child being in his arms at the time, "This is my daughter. If any one wants her, I will sell her for seventy dollars." Asked why he wanted to sell his own flesh and blood, he replied; "My wife is dead, and I want money to pay a coolie to buy her. I have had a coffin given me by the Tung Wa Hospital." Subsequently he observed, "My wife has been dead for some time. I wanted to make some money." The detective of the anti-Kidnapping Society, suspecting the child was not his, took both to the Police Station and charged the mendicant as aforesaid. Later on the detective proceeded to the village the mendicant said he belonged to, and found the latter's better half there "alive and kicking." The villagers said the defendant had taken his child away, and no one knew where they had gone to.—In his defence on the 8th instant, the mendicant said he did not want to sell his child, that he simply brought her to Hongkong for purposes connected with the interesting profession of cadging he had just entered upon. He denied having ever said any one could buy the child for seventy Mexicanos. This morning the mendicant said he would take the child back to her mother, whereupon Captain Thomsett discharged him.—The present case, one amongst many, shews the utter heartlessness which prevails, among the parents of some classes of the Chinese in respect to their offspring. There is little doubt that the enterprising cadger would have cheerfully disposed of the girl for even less than seventy Mexicanos, could he have secured a purchaser.

A PARADE and inspection of the Government and Volunteer Fire Brigades took place yesterday afternoon, at half-past four o'clock. The weather was very threatening, so the practice was not carried out so fully as was originally intended. Number 2 engine was stationed on the Praya, pumping salt water from the sea to the top of the Tung Wah Hospital, while No. 3 Engine, stationed at the corner of Bonham Strand, supplied from a hydrant, was pumping water up the hill and supplying a manual engine stationed a little higher up. Another manual engine was stationed at the junction of Hollywood and Caine Roads, the idea being an imaginary fire in the Po-lok theatre. Within the short space of fourteen minutes after the practice commenced, an immense body of water was ready at hand to be thrown on any burning building. Great volumes of water were thrown over the top of the Po-lok theatre, which is about 150 feet above sea level. The engines worked in capital order, and the practice was in every way a great success. We think it would perhaps be better in future if the time of parade were changed, as such a course would enable more of the Volunteer Fire Brigade to attend, half-past four being a rather inconvenient hour for many of the members of that very worthy and most useful body. We do not make the above suggestion in any dictatorial spirit, but as we have heard that opinion expressed by various members of the corps, we submit it for the consideration of the proper authorities.

CORRESPONDENCE.

We do not necessarily endorse the opinions expressed by Correspondents in this column.

To the Editor of the "Hongkong Telegraph": Sir,—I read with surprise and sorrow in your last night's issue, that Mr. Wodehouse—who every one knows overflows with the milk of human kindness—(as witness his two decisions of yesterday), and whose courteous and pains-taking conduct as a Magistrate is so favorably contrasted with some of his brother Justices, should have given a judgment altogether contrary to the principles of humanity and common sense.

The Celestial who struck his fowls there the egg on his bamboo was let off with a caution.

Mr. Wodehouse, I opine, had dissected at his own table, the previous evening, some of the tribe, and had come to the conclusion that they could stand anything.

Yours truly,
EXETER HALL.

INSPECTION OF THE TROOPS AT SINGAPORE.

The annual inspection of the troops in Singapore, by H.E. the Major General Commanding, was commenced this morning June 3rd at Tanglin, where, at 6.30 o'clock, the Royal Inniskillings paraded in Review order. His Excellency first inspected the Battalion, after which the same marched past in open column, quarter column and at double time. They then formed line, and went through the manual and firing exercises under Lieutenant Colonel Hales; Major Coffey then put them through the bayonet exercise. Major Staniforth then took command of the battalion and put the same through in battalion drill; next, the same was done under Captain Bennett; and similar movements in battalion were made under the command of Captain Michaelson. Company drill was the next exercise, by the subordinates of companies. The battalion then formed quarter column; and the Major General addressed the men in a few words. They were, His Excellency said, very fine body of soldiers; they had turned out to-day remarkably clean; and they had drilled well. The Regiment then marched home to Barracks. There were on the ground the following sixteen officers in addition to H.E. Major General Sergeant, Major Curdew, Assistant Military Secretary, and Lieut. Allen, Aide-de-Camp to His Excellency, vice-Lieut.-Colonel A. Geddes; Lieut.-Colonel A. Hales; Major F. Coffey; Major P. Staniforth; Captain J. Manners Kerr, A.P.D.; Captain G. H. Michaelson; Captain J. Austney Bennett; Lieut. W. Windrum, (Quarter-master); Lieut. W. S. Byrd Levett; Lieut. R. H. Cholmondeley; Lieut. J. F. W. Charley; Lieut. E. A. Sanders, (Adjutant); Lieut. C. J. Lloyd; Lieut. L. Leathly Armitage; Lieut. A. A. Graves; Lieut. S. Garnett Radcliffe; Sergeant-Major Williams and 23 Sergeants; with 13 corporals and 283 men. Major Alexander, A.P.D., and Major Hope, Assistant Commissary General, and several other officers of the different branches of the Service were also on the ground. The fact that the General's Inspection was to take place this morning had not been widely known else there would have been no doubt, a large concourse of the general community to witness the ceremony. This Regiment has always acquitted itself well on previous occasions of a similar nature; but on few of those have such commendatory words been vouchsafed to them as fell from the Lieutenant-General commanding this morning. General Donegan had never much and seldom anything to say, however well he might be pleased with the appearance of the men, the smartness and the neatness of the evolutions they were called on to go through. These words of praise are the more to be appreciated coming from one of the strictest Major-Generals commanding in the Army, so far as all matters relating to inspection for efficiency, appearance and discipline are concerned.

Before breakfast, the Major-General inspected the Hospital and then saw one section, (the fourth part of a Company) engage in volley firing. The former was found very clean and comfortable admirably suited for the purposes for which it is intended; and the firing was very good indeed. At 10 o'clock His Excellency inspected the Orderly room and books &c., and went round the Barracks at Tanglin; and at noon the kits of the Regiment were turned out. At 3 o'clock this afternoon he inspects the half battery of the Royal Artillery and the company of the Royal Inniskilling Fusiliers there. Monday will be devoted to the inspection of the Arsenal and Stores, and Tuesday to the inspection of the other half battery of the Royal Artillery stationed at the various Forts. The Royal Artillery will then engage in big gun practice, &c.; and the inspection will probably be concluded by the middle of next week. The Major General, who is during his stay here, the guest of the Hon. C. C. Smith, C.M.G., hopes, we understand, to be able to leave for Hongkong by the next French mail steamer to China.

The Major-General and suite left Penang, we learn, almost immediately after the inspection there was concluded—and we have accordingly not heard the result of the annual insight into all affairs military which has just been completed here—but if it be as highly satisfactory as that which is now in progress here promises to be, then the Straits Settlements, this year, have great reason to congratulate themselves on the efficient state of the forces of Her Majesty stationed at the various points of vantage and within call in case of emergency.—Singapore Times.

GOGO SHAMPOO WASH

to the public as unrivalled by any preparation ever produced for promoting the growth of the hair. The basis of this compound is made of soap root; the natives of the Pampas Islands never use anything else for washing their hair; they are never found bald, and it is quite common to see the females with hair from 5 to 6 feet long. By constantly using this Shampoo Wash as directed, you will NEVER BE BALD.

The proprietor offers the Wash to the public entirely confident that by its restorative properties it will without fail arrest decaying hair. It completely eradicates scurf, dandruff and cures all diseases of the scalp. It does not contain any poisonous drugs. By its cooling properties it allays the itching and fever of the scalp, which is the great cause of people losing their hair.

Mr. MOORE has succeeded in being able to put this wash up in bottles without allowing it to ferment, and he will guarantee it to keep any length of time in any climate. [436]
